management CursorAdapter I have a table in my SQLite database with a timestamp field (datetime) as a primary key. I am querying the SQLiteDatabase in order to get the entire row corresponding to the date of a particular row. My question is: when using a CursorAdapter, how can I manage the ListView and make sure that it is not displayed until after querying the database? Here's the code I've been working on

String query = "SELECT * FROM " + TABLE_NAME; Cursor myCursor =
    database.rawQuery(query, null);
Log.i("DateSqlTable", "select");
myCursor.moveToFirst(); String date = myCursor.getString(myCursor.getColumnIndex("date")); return date;

I've been following the example here: I'm just not sure of what to do after I've called the method getDate() and made sure the listView is displayed on the screen. How do I make it so that the listView is up and running and I can query my database again, this time with the _id field?

A: The basics of CursorAdapter is to have a Cursor hold the data that the list view is going to show, and create a row based on that Cursor to display it. The Cursor should be closed after the CursorAdapter has been created, so that no longer reference to the Cursor will exist. From
