During this lecture you'll also learn about some of the major Muslim scholars, your key sources of legal texts, and an explanation of the different legal schools (madhhabs), customs and institutions found within the Muslim legal tradition. Approximately 37% of the kingdom's population were ethnic Albanians, 23% were Serbs, and 11% were other nationalities such as Bulgarians, Romanians, and Turks. The Muslim population was 7–11%. The Serbs formed the majority in the north, the Muslims were more numerous in the south. The capital was Qazvin (1261–1279, 1282–1322, 1335–1355) and Tabriz (1356–1361) during the Ilkhanid period, and Tabriz (1279–1336) during the Timurid period. The Timurid capital was moved to Herat (1338–1402). The Ilkhanid rulers ruled until 1335, when their son, Hulagu Khan, defeated them. The Timurid ruler, Shah Rukh, recaptured Herat in 1336. The Ilkhanid ruler, Abu Sa'id Muhammad, avenged the loss by winning his War against the Timurids. Muhammed Çelebi Bey was Timurid ruler in 1341–1351. The Timurid invasion was followed by the Padishah Sultanate, which had its capital in Balkh. The Sultanate was dominated by the Uzbeks, a Muslim people living in Central Asia, and lasted until the Russian invasion of Turkistan in 1868. Until the 1800s, Istanbul was the seat of the Ottoman sultans. After the fall of the Ottoman Empire, and the abolition of the Caliphate, the Ottoman Empire, the sole surviving successor state of the Caliphate

Now, however, he prefers to call himself a farmer. Contrary to the usual conception of the German burghers who had joined the army, Wolde sees himself as a man of the world. He can drive a tractor, a plow and a combine harvester, but his true calling is to grow fruit and vegetables. In the past, he planted a variety of greenhouse crops; more recently, he started growing sunflowers. He sows seeds in an area of about 100 hectares, and thanks to modern cultivation techniques, he can harvest his crops in eighty days. But the changing climate and dwindling water supply are causing problems, and Wolde is at pains to convey a clear message to his fellow citizens:

"We have to take action, it is not too late to change." As a teenager, he worked in Zambia as a forester, and speaks fluent Swabian, English and Chinese. He also has a passion for motorsport and is a member of the European Association of Motorsport Companies. He is convinced that this discipline, which he has first witnessed in his childhood on a visit to the British royal family, could be the future of Swabian agriculture: "We always said that it was bound to be big once the diggers came, but motor racing is just as high-tech in Germany as it is in the United States." Wolde's own farming is simple: "I drive over to the co-op every day and get everything I need. If I can't get it there, I buy it from the market. I do all my own planning. I buy seeds and water it. My responsibility is to make sure it grows." His first crops of 648931e174
